I had lately, while traveling, reread Bedi, Charas, Fontana et al and made suitable notes. Today, except for the zoo meeting, I spent the time improving the ~~biting~~ mechanism section by incorporating suitable historical references. Also shortened it somewhat by cutting down the parts of the fang descriptions taken from the Occ. Papers. Worked hard on this and made good progress.

This noon at a meeting of the zoo directors they took formal action looking to the publication of the book. Set aside $7000 at present in the publication fund (including my $3000) and agreed to put $6,500 per year for next 2 years in the fund to make the total $20,000.

Worked all day on the history of rattlesnake bite treatment and finished the first draft. Still plenty to do to co-ordinate it, and touch it up.

gave the history a carefully overhauling. Finished veterinary treatments. Began on case durations.
A rather profitable day. The end of the snake-bite chapter is at least in sight.
